

Studying in Punta Cana

This is me studying in Punta Cana, for my comprehensive examinations for my PhD in economics. One of my girlfriend's best friends is from the Dominican Republic, and she had her wedding there. My girlfriend was a bridesmaid. Since we were flying all the way, we thought we would add a few days of vacation. I still needed to study, though. I sat down all day after lunch in the big roofed hallway, having coca cola and custom tacos - it was an all-inclusive resort. I kept studying.

Look at the raindrops on the chair in the background. Tropical storm raged on while I studied under a roof. It was a great studying spot, probably the best in my life.
